parisian boutique hotel

The Castille Paris is located in the heart of the city, between Place de la Concorde and Place Vendôme, adjacent to Chanel’s universal temple of elegance in Rue Cambon. Elegance and sophistication reverberates throughout the hotel, where Parisian charm and Italian class merge exquisitely. The Castille Paris exudes the eternal appeal of an aristocratic eighteenth century residence.

history

The building’s history dates back more than three hundred years. It was the residence and gardens of Marechal du Luxembourg. In 1719 the area where the Castille Paris stands today, was purchased by the architect Leduc. In 1876 the name of the street was changed to Rue Cambon. In 1785, Conte de Brienne established his home at number 35 and remodelled the building, creating the late 18th century facade that can still be seen today.

rooms & suites

The 108 rooms, including 21 totally renovated suites, are on two wings. The Opéra Wing is a symphony of black and beige, parquet flooring, and decorative chiaroscuro motifs. The duplex suites feature two bathrooms in Calacatta marble. On the Rivoli Wing, the tone is classical elegance. Chairs with Vienna straw pattern, bathrooms decorated in pearl grey and artworks of black and white photographs by Robert Doisneau, recreate the magical atmosphere of Paris in the ‘30s. All rooms have the famous soft goose down Starbed.
